Rape crisis line expands services

BY LOREN SCHNEIDERMAN
Daily Staff Writer

What began as simply a rape emergency service is now the San Luis Obispo Rape Crisis Center, a 24-hour help center located at 550 Foothill Blvd.

The Rape Crisis Center provides emergency assistance, counseling, and housing for sexual assault victims throughout San Luis Obispo County.

Mary Raetz is the director of the center, which employs ten trained volunteer counselors. These counselors also act as record keeping assistants.

The Rape Crisis Center is funded by a $17,000 grant of the California Department of Social Services. Raetz said that this money goes to pay the center's rent and the salary of the sole clerical employee.

Raetz has applied for additional funding which would provide temporary housing for sexual assault victims who are otherwise unable to find suitable housing.

Also, she hopes to get funding to provide temporary child care centers and pay for mileage for the volunteers who transport the children.

Raetz said the one thing that would greatly assist rape victims is a 24-hour telephone patch-line. This patch-line, she said, would allow victims to receive the services of a trained counselor on call. This phone service would also be available to the Victims Assistance Unit of the District Attorney's Office, as well as to various police agencies.

Moving into a permanent office was a necessity for the Rape Crisis Center, according to Raetz.

Raetz said the location at 550 Foothill Blvd. is not only suitable for crisis counseling, but it is also used as a drop-in center for persons who have questions concerning sexual assault.

The Knack

Close to sell-out

Approximately 500 tickets remain for this Saturday's concert with The Knack.

Of the 3,600 tickets available for the concert, over two-thirds were sold on Monday, the first day of sales.

"We sold 2,455 tickets the very first day and that's an unprecedented amount for the first day of sales," said Chris Romak, Concert Committee chairman.

The 900 non-student tickets made available sold-out at 1:30 p.m. on Monday, Romak said. Off-campus ticket sales were limited to only 25 percent for The Knack, said Romak, to give more Cal Poly students a chance to attend the concert.

"This is the fastest selling concert ever at this school up to now," he added.

Echoing that statement is Mike Evans, ASI ticket sales manager. On Monday, Evans said students were lined up in front of the University Union Ticket office as early as 7 a.m. to buy concert tickets.

"At 9:15 it went all the way down to Chumash and around to the drinking fountain," said Evans of the line that wrapped around the top floor of the U.U.

Evans, who has worked in the U.U. ticket office for three years, said The Knack ticket lines "were some of the longest lines I've ever seen at the ticket office."

Mustang Daily—Garth Jaehling

Mrs. Mary Raetz, director of the Rape Crisis Center in San Luis Obispo, listens to a question from a reporter during a press conference held to explain the center. Raetz and ten other workers at the center give counseling to victims of sexual assault and help them find housing. The center is presently funded by a $17,000 grant from the state Department of Social Services. Raetz is seeking more funds to expand the center's services and to reimburse volunteers who spend money in helping victims.

Some mad at Knack concert

BY TOM FULKES
Daily Staff Writer

"Nuke the Knack," one irate student recently screamed before he spat upon the band's publicity poster in the University Union Plaza.

At least one member of the ASI Concert Committee said he, too, is upset about the Knack concert.

Lee Cyr, a member of the executive board of the ASI Concert Committee, said he does not like the process by which the Knack was selected to perform at Cal Poly.

According to Cyr, a decision was made by the Concert Committee to have a Ronnie Laws and Kenny Rankin concert. Later, that was overturned by the executive board in favor of the Knack.

Cyr described the scenario leading to that decision:

At a Concert committee meeting on Sept. 28, members voted to look into the possibility of getting a concert with Laws and Rankin.

At a meeting a week later on Oct. 5, a motion was passed to try to get a Van Morrison concert scheduled. This was a "long shot" according to Cyr. As part of the vote it was agreed by the entire committee that if the Morrison deal fell through then the Laws and Rankin concert would be a finality. The Morrison deal later fell through.

At the next meeting a week later, Oct. 12, the executive board, chaired by Chris Romak, announced to the full committee there was a "hot" act coming in the place of Laws and Rankin. Cyr said the executive board told the full committee the band coming would be one everyone on the committee would like, only they could not tell anyone who the band was because of a publicity gimmick by that band.

According to Romak, the reason they could not release the band's name was because the Knack did not want to face adverse publicity in the event they backed out of their commitment. They also had a publicity campaign planned—ten second "teasers" on most of the San Luis Obispo radio stations. The advertising spots had a brief tune by the band and a voice that said people would "get it soon." The teaser never mentioned the name of the band.

During the course of the next week the Mustang Daily acquired the name of the band through a leak in the executive board.

At the next full committee meeting, a vote of confidence was taken on the Knack concert. The committee passed the motion.

Cyr said he did not want to start a precedent enabling the executive board to make deals with bands without the consultation of the regular committee.

According to executive board Chair Romak, "This is not precedent setting. It's happened many times before."

Romak gave as an example the decision last year to have George Benson play in the Cal Poly Gym. Romak said that decision was made by one person with no consultation from anyone, but was justified by the fact that it was a now-or-never deal and there was no time for consultation. The Knack choice was much the same, he said.

Academic Senate opposes general ed proposal

BY MEG MCCONAHEY
Daily Staff Writer

Academic Senators at a special meeting Tuesday voted against supporting a recommendation to increase the number of general education units required at CSUS campuses.

The recommendation was part of a final report by the Chancellor's Task Force on General Education that re-evaluated the objectives of GE.

The Academic Senate does not have any direct say in the final outcome of the report, said Bill Stine, chairman of the Academic Senate General Education and Breadth Committee (GE-B). It can make recommendations to President Warren Baker, who may influence the final decision.

The GE-B Committee has been studying the report since it was first released in April, and came up with a two-part package outlining the general views of the Academic Senate and various faculty members.

The first part of the package to be submitted to Baker is a compilation of reports by ad hoc committees representing each of the schools and departments at Cal Poly.

The second part is a series of seven resolutions dealing with specific points of the report that the GE-B Committee singled out as most important, the resolutions were adopted by the Academic Senate at the Tuesday meeting, including the resolution against the increase in required GE units.

Stine said the reports by ad hoc committees will give Baker a clear view of both sides of the GE questions because many expressed disagreement with some of the objectives outlined by the Task Force.

Yet Senator-at-Large Joe Weatherby called the individual reports by each school and department "parochial and self-serving." He predicted they would have no weight outside of Cal Poly.

"If anything, they will be detrimental to our effort," said Weatherby.

The question of whether or not to endorse an increase in GE units triggered the most debate.

Resolution A, passed by the Senate, said an increase from 60 to 72 quarter units of general education "would not be in the best interests of the majority of students at Cal Poly."

Jim Conway, chairman of the Academic Senate Budget Committee, said the university would save money by increasing the GE load because student credit units would shift from a greater concentration in high-cost, technical areas to lower-cost, general education areas.

But Richard Krantzdorf, speaking in favor of the resolution, predicted another "Custer's last stand on this university campus and throughout the CSUC system" if an increase in GE requirements were adopted.

The Senate also passed a resolution supporting the philosophy that distribution of GE-B unit requirements be left to the discretion of each CSUC campus.

The Task Force Report recommended that 70 of the proposed 72 GE units be within five subject areas. Stine criticized that objective as not being in touch with the particular needs and specifications of individual schools, especially Cal Poly, because it has a heavy emphasis on technical skills and hands-on training.

The Senate unanimously passed a resolution supporting the concept of campus review of all GE courses to ensure that they fulfill GE-B objectives.

George Lewis of Science and Mathematics, who said he is in favor of the resolution, expressed concern that substance is being avoided in the work demanded of students.

"I find I'm teaching at an institution calling itself a university where there is no foreign language requirement and courses in technical writing are being substituted for composition," Lewis said.

Krantzdorf, who supported an increase in GE units, made a pitch against passage of the resolution by acknowledging the importance of qualitative and quantitative aspects of general education.

"It would have been better if both resolutions could've been implemented, but the least we can do now is go for the qualitative aspect," he said.

Another resolution adopted by the Senate supports funding for remedial courses designed to provide basic entry level competence in written and oral communication and mathematics.

Tahoe conference

One hundred and five dollars may seem like a drop in the near-million-dollar ASI bucket. Unfortunately 20 such drops total over $2,000 and were collectively taken from Cal Poly students to pay for a weekend seminar.

Mustang Daily reported Tuesday, Oct. 30, that 10 students and two staff members from the University Union Board of Governors, and five students and three staffers from the ASI Program Board will attend a conference in Lake Tahoe this weekend. Students are picking up the $105 per person tab.

Holley Smith, advisor to the Program Board, said Tuesday the students will benefit from the conference. The event will provide them with invaluable knowledge and experience in dealing with programs, she said.

Undoubtedly, it will. But Smith skirts the real issue entirely. It is not that students will or will not gain practical knowledge on the trip, but whether it is ethical to send 20 to do a job which could be accomplished by fewer.

Nick Forestiere, chairman of the Finance Board, said ASI budgeted the Program Board for, at most, eight people to attend the conference. Advisor Smith said the funds for the additional five riders will be taken from the Program Board reserve fund.

Reserve funds, by definition, can be used for whatever is stipulated by the organization. The Program Board, by using its funds, sidesteps the wishes of ASI—that the group only send eight people to Tahoe.

Students seem to have lost direct control. Just because a campus organization has build a reserve does not mean it should have unlimited say over how that money is spent any more than would city council if extra funds were found.

Also, because ASI distributes student money to campus organizations, it has the right to know how and why reserve funds are used.

Forestiere said this is only the top of the iceberg. He said ASI has never received a breakdown of reserve fund expenditures by any campus club or organization. Such quarterly breakdowns were mandated by a Student Senate Bill passed two years ago.

Forestiere said he hopes a memorandum sent to campus organizations recently will rectify the situation. We applaud the chairman's efforts and hope his Proposition 13 fever spreads to other ASI members.

Crude realities

Editor:

I am writing a rebuttal to the article Pork Prison Loop in your Oct. 25 issue.

I was shocked by the naive attitude of the author. But more than shocked, quite angry, because sadly enough this attitude prevails among a large majority of Cal Poly students. Not to say that I was never naive about the realities of our world, because I was. I lived in a world untouched by crime. Everything bad happened to "someone else." Some make-believe people were being killed, raped, etc., in some other world. Mine was never touched by that.

The author made the comment, "Who wants to talk about something so distant from our lives?" Nothing could be farther from the truth. The fact is that no matter how unblemished the town, the crime is still there—it just isn't brought to the surface.

But it is a reality for me and two of my closest friends. I was one of three Cal Poly women who were held hostage for nine hours by John House, an escapee from the California Men's colony.

The naive attitude continues to prevail and I have gotten to the point where I want to scream. Wake up people! Reality is here, not somewhere else.

The author went on to describe his visit to the Men's Colony and the compassion he felt for his guide, a young man sentenced to 22 years in prison for murder. I wonder if the author would feel the same compassion if his girlfriend had been raped or murdered by this man? I wonder how many of you would feel compassion for a man who had bound and gagged three innocent women and described to them in detail how he would brutally maim their bodies and genitals, and then kill them?

I wonder if the same compassion would be felt if one of those three women was your friend? Or if you had been one of them? I am one of these women and many of you reading this are my friends—but you did not know this happened to me.

Further compassion was expressed for the long sentence the young man would have to serve for murdering someone. The question was asked, "Is it right, though, to put this guy away and change his life so violently that when he does get out at 44, he will probably be more harmful to society than he was before."

What about the victims and friends of the family? Aren't their lives changed violently? John House got 19 years for what he did. But how many years did we get sentenced to? How long will we have to live with that night of terror—and remember it again and again? We're prisoners just the same—serving time for a crime we did not commit. Our only crime was being victims to an animal. Open your eyes, people.

I am not trying to paint an ugly picture of reality so that you will live in fear. I am just trying to say be aware, please. It does happen to people like you and me—and not in some far-off world.

Editors' note: the name of the writer is being withheld due to the nature of the crime.

Pork prison loop

Editor:

Gregor Robin's "Pork Prison Loop" editorial last Thursday, which dealt with the sad and brutal irony of our prison system, really hit home.

Too many of us refuse to give thought to the wretched hypocrisy of this country's "correctional" institutions. We turn our backs on the fact that often within hours after someone is admitted (to be "rehabilitated") into these crime factories, they are gang-raped, beaten and dehumanized.

We turn our backs on the fact that 75 percent of inmates paroled are back in prison within five years.

For those of you interested in learning a little about the horrendous, less-publicized facts of prison life, read "Terror in the Prisons" by Weiss and Friar. These two penologists reveal very graphically the systemized corruption that exists within our tax-supported "corrective" institutions.

No doubt we should keep the true-hearted criminal locked up, away from society. But it is the abominable way the system is organized that bothers me. It serves no justice to see young, still-impressionable offenders transformed so easily into more killers.

You're right, Gregor—we did make them. Tom Kinsolving

DC-10 crash in Mexico kills 63

MEXICO CITY (AP)—A Western Airlines DC-10 jetliner inbound from Los Angeles with 88 or 89 persons aboard landed on a closed-for-repairs runway at fog-shrouded Mexico City airport today and crashed, killing at least 63 persons, officials said.

The plane plowed into two airport buildings and burst apart into hundreds of pieces. A survivor said he thought the plane may have also hit a house before landing.

Red Cross and other officials said 63 bodies had been recovered from the wreckage.

The U.S. consul said 19

survivors, all injured, were taken to three hospitals. The fate of the others was not known. Nor was it known how many Americans were aboard. Many of the names were Hispanic.

In New York, ABC said Ken Lucoff, 31, one of its news producers, was killed in the crash. He was en route to El Salvador to cover the rioting there.

Crew member Eduard Valencia walked out of the crash with minor injuries.

A Mexican aviation official said the plane touched down on a runway that was closed for repairs and that it struck a parked truck and killed its driver.

SANTA BARBARA (AP)—Between 30 and 50 Indians and their supporters marched onto the proposed liquified natural gas terminal site at Point Conception today, vowing to stay until they are arrested or until trenching operations at the site are halted.

"They're ready to stay until they're carted off, or until they're pretty sure the trenching will not proceed," said Johnny Flynn, spokesman for the Santa Barbara Indian Center.

Sheriff's deputy Douglas

Tiffany confirmed that a group of Indians had moved on to the site 30 miles west of Santa Barbara about 5 a.m.

Fraternity throws Halloween party at Jespersen

BY VICKI MILLER

Daily Staff Writer

With the help of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity members, the handicapped children at Chris Jespersen School all took home a jack-o-lantern for Halloween.

"Mainly we just have a good time with the kids," said fraternity member Steve Troehler. "It's more rewarding than a beer party."

Ghosts, clowns, cowboys and a variety of other costumed children—many in wheelchairs—helped to carve the more than 50 pumpkins donated from the Cal Poly Crop Science Department.

The children ate cookies, drank apple cider and gave directions on how they wanted their pumpkins to be cut to the 20 or so fraternity members and little sisters.

Lambda Chi Alpha wants to be involved in helping the community, said Vice President Bob Shriner. The fraternity has been active at Cal Poly for about a year and a half.

Besides this second annual Halloween party for the handicapped, the fraternity has sponsored two chicken barbecues for the March of Dimes, a tennis marathon to help cancer and a blood drive.

Shriner said the party was not only for the school children but for all the members working at the party.

"It makes you appreciate what you have," he said.

There is a current movement to involve handicapped children more with non-handicapped people, said Diana Schroeder, a teacher at Chris Jespersen School. Before the party, the children attended a costume parade at Pacheco Elementary School next door.

Schroeder said that the 40 to 50 people, ages three to 21, attending the school have classes in daily living skills, self-help programs and academic subjects.

"We enjoy holidays," said Schroeder, dressed as an exotic bird with feathers and yarn and purple eyelashes her glasses.

Snoopy and Woodstock made a guest appearance at the party and handed out balloons to the children who quickly surrounded them.

"I love Snoopy," whispered one girl standing next to a costume that looked like a giant dog.

Shriner said the fraternity hopes to continue such Halloween parties for the handicapped.

ROTC: Pinnacles a peak experience

BY DOUG HUCKINS
Daily Outdoor Writer
Hiking, nature study and photography were on the agenda of a campus group's camping trip to Pinnacles National Monument last weekend.

Army ROTC cadets and orienteering class members traveled to the Pinnacles Saturday morning and returned Sunday afternoon. The outing was the second adventure day scheduled this fall by the military science department.

The park, about 34 miles south of Hollister, can be reached from the south through King City. The west entrance from U.S. 101 at Soledad is not a through road.

According to Matt Gam, a National Park Service ranger who has been at the park for two years, the park is predominantly a weekend use area.

Although people visit the park year-round, Gam said the ideal time is during April and May when winter rains have turned the landscape green and wildflowers are in bloom. Wildlife is also most abundant at that time of year, he said.

Hiking and rock climbing are the most popular kinds of physical recreation in the park. Climbing registration isn't required, but those planning to attempt difficult climbs in remote areas should check with a ranger before and after the climb. Hikers should stay on established trails and avoid cutting across the many switchbacks. That practice encourages erosion during the rainy season and can also offer treacherous footing.

Visitors must walk the many trails that lace the monument to really see the area.

Nine trails vary in length from the .7-mile Moses Spring trail, which originates at the east entrance visitor center, to the 9-mile round-trip Chalona Peak trail. This trail ascends 2150 feet to a fire lookout at the south end of the park.

There are also four self-guiding trails for which leaflets or booklets are available at the visitor center.

According to Gam, a popular trail that allows hikers to view most areas of the park is the High Peaks loop.

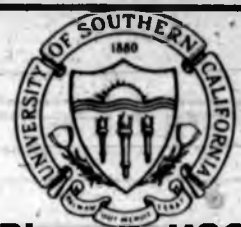

Visitors start the 10-mile route on the Juniper Canyon trail at Chaparral campground, take the High Peaks trail at Scout Peak and return along the Balconies trail. The Balconies Caves, which aren't as extensive as the Bear Gulch Caves, are along the return route.

Conservation

BY DOUG HUCKINS
Daily Outdoor Writer

From time to time, bits and pieces of information relevant to conservation education and outdoor sports cross my desk. Here's a compilation of some of the most recent:

—In the California desert, a pair of fish and game biologists with tough hides and young hearts hacked a ramp into a natural water tank in the Mojave Desert near the east Chocolate Mountains of Imperial County. Mountain bighorns frequently drowned while trying to get a drink of water in a 12-foot deep basin that had no means of escape. The two men flew in a jackhammer and an air compressor to help do the job. Funds for the project were partially provided by fine money from fish and game violations in that county.

There is a feeling in Washington that gun registration would be no more effective than the registration of cars. For example, the licensing department lost track of some 217,000 vehicles last year. After totalling the figures, there should have been almost 3.5 million registrations. Yet, there were 216,942 missing autos. The inference is this: If something as large as a car can be lost, how can they keep track of a gun?

—500 million dollars is more than the annual budget of some states, yet that amount is how much sportsmen pay for conservation each year. That amount is so large it may be difficult to put into perspective. Broken down into smaller figures, the amounts may be easier to relate to. For example: An hour passes-sportsmen pay $57,082.80 for conservation. In one day-sportsmen pay $1,370,000. The Dallas Cowboys win the 1978 Super Bowl-sportsmen pay $57,060 for conservation.

—When the Int'l. Whaling Commission met in July, there were mixed results for the world's whales. Some good results were a limited ban on huge 'factory ships,' the creation of a whale sanctuary in the Indian Ocean, and Japan's agreement to stop buying whale products from whalers who ignore the IWC quotas. The quota was reduced by about 7,000 on sperm whales, but the fin whale quota was increased by about 200; both species are endangered. The highly endangered bowhead and humpback were the subject of great controversy; the IWC decided to allow continued limited hunting by aboriginal whalers such as Eskimos.

Water polo players dive into the last game of the year

BY LESA PORCHE

Daily Staff Writer

As she watched Cal Poly's inner club judo match on Tuesday night, Coach Kathy Carlisle was impressed with the display of stamina her athletes exhibited.

Club Director Freddy Flores also pronounced the club a "fine bunch of athletes that is progressing at a fast speed."

Flores, a world class judo athlete himself, said the inner club match was a preview of the season's matches to come.

The results of the match for the lightweight division were; first place John Svinth, second place Will Taylor and placing third place Charles Brown. For the heavyweight division, first place went to Frank Olivera, second place was Eric Kachadorian and third was Dennis Lim. The overall champion was John Svinth. In the girls division Holly Williams placed first and Vicky Armstrong and Tammy Cooper tied for second.

Flores said the team is progressing at such a fast rate that eight of the club members will be participating in the AAU tournament November 9 and 10 in Las Vegas. There will be another inner club match on December 4 and it is open to the public.

"It's hard to get motivated when you have so many coaches," Beldon said. "It will really help next year's team knowing that Jim will be here."

The coaches aren't the only changes that the players have seen over the past years. According to Neville the team is not getting the strong shooters they once had. He said that they have accurate shooters, but not too many who can pound the ball in.

"We've lost a lot of talented players, and it all relates back to the coaching," Rhodes said. "How can we get the new players here when we didn't even know who the coach was going to be?"

Water polo has also lost support from Cal Poly over the years, Rhodes said. This year's team had to pay for their expenses out of their own pocket. The team does not have team suits, or sweats. The school however, does give them five new water polo balls a year.

The seniors agreed that the water polo program was not the main factor for coming to Cal Poly. Rhodes, an industrial engineer major, said that because water polo is low-key here, he can study and still compete.

"When you have played a game for that long a time, it's hard to give up," Rhodes said.

Cal Poly's water polo team added 2 victories to its win column last weekend by stopping Loyola University and taking a forfeit from De Anza College.

Sophomore Bill Cadwallader's scored seven goals to lead the Mustangs to a 23-8 win over Loyola. Five of Cadwallader's kills came in first quarter.

Freshman Brad Stahl added four of his own goals to the tally. Steve Farrell counted for three more goals, while John Holbeck and Steve Here scored two shots apiece. Goalie Paul Beldon stopped eight shots defensively. De Anza College forfeited the game on Sunday due to injuries.

At noon on Saturday the team will end the 1979 season. The home game against Fresno State will complete the water polo careers for four seniors. Paul Beldon, Skip Neville, Jeff Rhodes, and Matt White have used up their four years of athletic eligibility.

Jeff Rhodes transferred here from a junior college, but the other three have played polo at Poly for the four years. During those years the team has had four different coaches.
